Hobby-Horses of Childhood Ridden by Lazy Citizens

Self-Indulgent Men Flayed by Kolb in Rotary Address

ENVY, INDIFFERENCE

Neglect to Vote Regularly—and They Dodge Court Jury Service

"Stick-horses are ridden by every boy—and he quits riding stick-horses only when he suddenly realizes they are not real, and he can no longer play make-believe." Dr. A. C. Kolb told Hope Rotary club in a community talk Friday noon at Hotel Barlow.

"But as grown men and women," continued the speaker, "we sometimes keep on riding stick-horses when we know they are no longer real. The names of these stick-horses are varied. One is selfishness.

"Another is jealousy.

"Still another is envy.

"Unconstructive and vindictive criticism is a fourth one.

"And perhaps the very worst is indifference, which is closely akin to selfishness. It is exemplified by the selfishness of the individual man who fails to provide for his family and his own old age. It is the story of the prodigal grasshopper, contrasted with the thrifty ant.

Public Indifference

"It is indifference that causes us to forget to go to the polls every election, unless we are interested in some particular candidate. Voting should be our regular duty. The idea that legitimate political activity will hurt us in our business is a false and cowardly idea.

"The recent county political campaign, furthermore, reveals certain practices that unselfish and courageous citizens should endeavor to correct.

"The candidates complain of the abuse of the community pie-eater idea, which put an extraordinary financial drain upon the men running for public office.

"All conscientious candidates deplore the practice of camp-followers entering into a campaign, claiming to get votes and offering to 'fix' certain communities.

"Then there is the case of the citizen who fails to pay his poll tax, half-expecting that some interested candidate will attend to it for him.

Jury Duty

"Finally, there is the well-known reluctance of the average citizen to accept jury duty. Yet, this reluctance tends to place irresponsible men on juries, resulting in especially large judgments whenever insurance is involved. But as a matter of fact all men know that the money to pay insurance judgments can come only from those who pay insurance premiums—and premiums never will be reduced until we improve the caliber of our juries.

Preceding Dr. Kolb's address, Roy Anderson 'introduced' A. H. Washburn as one of the Delta townships justices of the peace, resulting in considerable razzing for the editor whose name was written on the local ballot unbeknownst to him.

J. R. Henry reported discussion among the Rotary road-sign committee members—the other two members, E. F. McFadden and Mr. Anderson, promptly replying that they had trouble getting the chairman to attend their meetings.

A club guest Friday was John Cobb, of Little Rock.

LITTLE ROCK—Widespread rainfall in drouth areas of north and northwest Arkansas during the past few days have been of priceless value in creating fall planting opportunities and in improving pasturage. T. Roy Reid, state drouth relief director and assistant director in charge of the Agricultural Extension Service, said Thursday on returning from an inspection trip through the section.

"Most of all there is a noticeable improvement in the morale of the people," Mr. Reid said. "The old fighting spirit has come back, now that the drouth appears to be broken, and the effort to produce food no longer seems to be hopeless. In some of the very localities where there was complaint and despair a few weeks ago, everyone is optimistic and busy. I anticipate heavy demands for seed during the next two or three weeks. The most eloquent thing I can say about Northwest Arkansas today is that they are plowing up there."

On the return trip to Little Rock Thursday Mr. Reid encountered some rain at Fayetteville, Fort Smith, Paris and Charleston, he said.

Dog Days! Nothing to Get Mad About in the Arctic

Dog days! In most places a torrid time for everyone to steer clear of snipping mongrels, for small boys to stay out of stagnant swimming holes, and for dogs to pant for their breath and nip at files. But in the Arctic, when the midsummer sun soars to around zero—what a difference! Without even looking for shade, these huskies on the trail near Coronation Gulf, in northern Canada, took a cooling siesta when the sledging got tough the other day. Do dog days make them mad? Well, hardly.

254,815 Votes Cast in First Primary

Bailey's Final Margin Over Norwood Only 4,862 Votes

The call for the Democratic State Convention this year probably will be issued by Chairman Leo Miles tomorrow, and a place—Hot Springs or Little Rock will be named at the same time.

Only six wounds were fired, all taking effect.

Coroner Frank Reid, after the inquest, absolved the sheriff and returned a verdict that the killings occurred in line of duty.

Chicago Transport Strike Is Delayed

Blue Eagle Is Withdrawn From Motor Coach Company

By the Associated Press

A sympathy strike by Chicago's 119,000 transportation workers was indefinitely deferred Thursday when union officials decided to take no action pending mediation of the bus drivers' walkout. The hurtful car and elevated trainmen had suggested that the board authorize them to strike in sympathy with the busmen.

Until the conciliators succeed, or quit, the board said it would take no further action. The arbitrators continued to hunt for some terms acceptable to the Motor Coach company and the men, with the company contending that only 67 of its drivers were on strike. Bus service continued on normal schedule.

At Washington NRA announced it had withdrawn the Blue Eagle insigna from the Chicago Motor Coach company on recommendations of the National Labor Relations Board which recently held the company had violated the labor provisions of its code by discharging a group of employees for participation in union activities.

The busmen's "We are making the final lane for action," came from leaders in Washington, of the textile union with a strike of 600,000 impending, a few minutes before the Cotton Textiles Industrial Relations Board offered its services as peace-maker.

Only a "complete response" to the union's demands will get any attention, said a union official. He notified secretaries of the union locals that peace overtures had been made.

Striking employees of the Aluminum company of America, angered by the company's refusal to accept government negotiations of the dispute, said that hereafter "responsibility for any consequences" rests on the management.

Work was resumed on all Milwaukee county relief projects, with police and deputies on hand to prevent violence.

Pretty Girl Seized as Dillinger Aide Is Shot to Death

Police Mow Down Van Meter—Hold Unnamed Girl Friend

HE'S SIXTH TO DIE

Two Weeks' Search at St. Paul Brings Victory to Police

ST. PAUL, Minn.—(AP)—A pretty girl who had been seen with Homer Van Meter, Dillinger gangster who was slain here Thursday night, was under arrest Friday but officers declined to reveal her identity.

She was seen with Van Meter on several occasions when the desperado escaped from the Twin Cities his headquarters last March.

It was also learned Friday that Marian (Wickie) Conforti, known as Van Meter's girl friend for some time, was here two weeks ago in the company of the gangster who fell before police guns Thursday night.

The Conforti girl who was one of three arrested at Little Bohemia, Wis., when Dillinger and his henchmen escaped from a federal trap, is wanted by federal officers for a parole violation.

The girl who is held here Friday lives only a few blocks from where police Chief Frank Cullen and detectives cut down Van Meter with machine guns Thursday night as he was believed to be en route to her home.

Van Meter, sixth of the Dillinger mob to die, has been sought near for two weeks.

Police said their tip came from relatives of the girl who is now held prisoner, when they became suspicious of Van Meter.

Four of the Dillinger mob still remain at liberty.

Henry Lake, Nelson, listed as Mabel, public enemy, heads the list, with John Hamilton, close Dillinger ally, considered equally desperate. The other two are classified as lesser fry.

Beaten to Draw

ST. PAUL, Minn.—(AP)—Homer Van Meter, one of the cruelest lieutenants of slain John Dillinger's band of criminals, was slain Thursday night by bullets from a police machine gun as he fled from an alley.

The slaying climaxed an unrelenting two weeks' search for Van Meter, 35, after police had been tipped he was again in his old haunts here.

Van Meter pulled his pistol to fire two shots at his pursuers. They were Chief of Police Frank Cullen, new supervisor, of police; Tom Brown, head of the Bertillon Department, and Detectives Jess Dietrich and Thomas McMahon.

Both shots went wild and Van Meter fled for his life. Brown, squeezing the trigger of the machine gun, saw the gunman fall after a short chase. Chief Cullen was forced to desist in his firing to avoid hitting a woman.

Van Meter's body was perforated with about 50 slugs after he had scuttled from a street intersection not far from the downtown district when ordered to halt by the police officers, who recognized him as they were cruising in a squad car.

Chief Cullen said authorities had been "trailing Van Meter night and day for two weeks, intimating the fugitive had been going and coming from his hideaway here during that time. In his pockets was found $923 in cash, mostly in $10 and $20 bills. In his head, heart, hands, abdomen, legs and back, were bullets.

Found with the money was an extra clip of cartridges for his automatic and an Illinois motor vehicle license registration card issued to "Henry Adams."

The 17th killing in connection with the hunt for Dillinger and his gang, the fugitive was the second Dillinger mobman to meet death in this city. The first was Eugene Green, killed by a federal Department of Justice ambuscade when authorities sought the notorious outlaw after his sensational escape from an apartment here last March 31.

Van Meter, authorities learned after scanning the body, had had his face "lifted" and a mole in his forehead removed.

He had a tattoo mark on his left arm. When his crumpled body was packed into an ambulance, and later viewed at the morgue, it was ascertained that it had been removed. In recent years, Van Meter has sported a mustache. It too had been shaved off.

Your Health
By DR. MORRIS FISHER

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Sensitivity To Objects Has Unlimited Range

One of the most perplexing problems with which the medical profession has had to deal that of sensitivity to innumerable substances, causing such troublesome ailments as hay fever, asthma, eczema and related diseases. You might get an idea of the vastness of this problem by considering the effect of just one of the many substances with which we come into daily contact. Let us take cotton seed and cotton seed products, for example.

Investigators of the problems of sensitivity have found anywhere from one-half of 1 per cent to 2 per cent of people who are sensitive reacting to cotton seed.

You may not realize that cotton seed is used in salad oils, lard substitutes, butter substitutes, in the packing of sardines, in the setting of olives, in the frying of potato chips and fish, in various types of commercial oils, in cosmetic liniments and calves, and as a substitute for olive oil.

Moreover, cotton seed is found in mattresses, pillows, cotton blankets, the stuffings of furniture, on the greens and fairways of miniature golf courses, and in cattle foods of various kinds.

You can see, therefore, that there are numerous sources of contact and that, to avoid possible exposure, the person who is sensitive must be familiar with all the substances mentioned.

In testing whether a person is sensitive, the physician who specializes in this work usually uses the scratch test. This means that a small scratch is made on the surface of the skin and some dried cotton seed extract rubbed into the scratch.

At the same time another scratch is made and some inert substance is rubbed in for comparison. The person who reacts will develop an inflammatory spot around the place into which the cotton seed extract had been rubbed.

It is also possible to make these tests by injecting the extract directly into the skin, but people who are sensitive to cotton seed sometimes react so severely that this test is not made except under very carefully controlled conditions. Apparently some of the proteins in cotton seed are responsible for the sensitivity.

I have also been found that people, who are sensitive to cotton seed are likely to be sensitive to peas, beans, and various nut products as well.

Denounces Men Who "Ruined" Old England—J. B. Priestley Is Bitter in Survey of His Island

By BRUCE CATTION

J. B. Priestley has been called a new model Dickens so many times that he must have decided to go out and strengthen the resemblance by acquiring a social conscience.

As a result, his new book, "English Journey," takes on a depth and a significance that his previous books have lacked.

Mr. Priestley set out to travel about England and see what was to be seen, and the sights made him angry; not the mild vexation of a man who has had an uncomfortable time, but the deep, wholesome indignation of one who has looked long at the prices that have to be paid for human greed and stupidity.

Industrial England, he declares, is an eyesore before the Lord; a black and hideous region of slums, ugly factories, slag-heaps, squalid cities, and soft-filled air.

Until recently, he remarks, England put up with it because, when all was said and done, this blighted area did make lots and lots of money for the people who didn't have to rub their noses in it.

But no wit lacks even that excuse. It makes no more money; much of it never will make any more. All the evils of Victorian industrialism remain, but none of the benefits.

Mr. Priestley wonders sadly what is going to become of his England. It ruined its ancient craft to become the world's workshop, and now that the world has found out on a limb, "English Journey" is a savage and effective attack on the blind and complacent Toryism which got the land into a mess from which Mr. Priestley, at least, sees no ready way

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Child's Disobedience Often Is Parents' Fault

Many parents, and even some teachers, are not born with the magic gift of explaining things clearly. They can be, and often are, experts at their work and in their knowledge of facts and things, yet they do not possess the faculty of passing on what they know to other people.

They seem to take it for granted that others can get the idea in their minds by some sort of telepathy. As a rule these vague people are impatient and likely to think the rest of us are stupid when we do not see the light at once.

Children sometimes live in a state of utter confusion because of this lack of clarity.

Mother at Fault

"I told you to do so and so," complains a mother, when perhaps she just thought it, or mentioned the matter vaguely. Because it is important to her, and clear in her own mind what she wants done, she thinks Johnny should go to it.

This is one reason why children make mistakes. If they can be called mistakes. Matters are muddled in their minds and they try to make it up in guessing.

Another reason for the failure of a child to carry out a command is that he doesn't hear it at all.

It's playing tag out in the yard, perhaps, and he's heart and soul in the game.

"I want you to come in and get dressed," calls his mother. His answer, "All right," is merely reflex. He doesn't hear it with mental ears. And, of course, forgets it at once if it registered at all.

A lot of disobedience, so called, results from a parent taking it for granted he has been heard and understood when he hasn't been heard in the least. Or when he gave indefinite orders. Or when he said, "Do it some time today," instead of being specific. All children procrastinate. They don't mean to, but life is so exciting that the moment always seems to be full of something else.

Two Rules for Parents

Therefore, if there seems to be a gap in young John's idea of doing what he's told, there are these two things to be considered.

Attention, first of all. Be sure that he is actually listening to what you say. Better, if possible to select a minute when he is not up to the ears in something else, unless you just can't wait.

Second, give the order and the explanation of what we want done clearly and concisely without ruffling.

Bleaching Corsets Suntan

At this time of year, a girl discovers that the suntan which so flatters with active sports clothes is quite horrible with new fall street dresses. In addition to the shade of her skin which, goodness knows, is annoying enough, there are the problems of dryness and coarse pores.

Of course, conscientious use of suntan lotion in the daytime, and tissue cream at night would have prevented the present catastrophe but there is no use talking about that now. Action is more important—that is, action combined with a good bleaching cream and a pore-shrinking, bleaching tonic.

There are two such preparations on the market now. As you have probably surmised, both contain lemon juice. The cream is a cleanser as well as a softener, and the lotion tones the skin and seems to shrink enlarged pores. Besides they smell good enough to eat.

When you've washed face and neck with soap and water, smooth on the bleaching cream. Let it stay on for five minutes and then remove with cleansing tissue. Afterward pat on the bleaching, toning skin tonic and let it dry. If you feel that you need another coat of cream, part of which can stay on all night, smooth a thin layer of the same thick cream on your skin. Wipe off only the excess.

Published by Harpers, this book is priced at $3.

A Victim of The New Deal

IF THE NATIONALIZATION OF SILVER, FOLLOWING THE ABANDONMENT OF THE GOLD STANDARD AS A MEANS OF EXPERIMENTAL INFLATION TO REGULATE FOREIGN EXCHANGE, MAKES POSSIBLE AN INCREASE IN GOVERNMENT ALLOTMENTS FOR UNDERPRODUCTION OF FARM PRODUCTS, IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE A.A.A., THEN HOW MANY EGGS COULD A HEN AND A HALF LAY IN A DAY AND A HALF, AND WHAT EFFECT WOULD THIS HAVE ON THE AMERICAN LEAGUE BAITING AVERAGES ANYHOW?

The worst feature of this alphabet soup being served out by the New Deal, such as the HOLC and the AAA, is that in the future it will be delivered COD.—Washachic Daily Light.

France has exported more than 1,000,000,000 francs in gold and 2,000,000,000 francs in foreign sight liabilities, since the United States went off the gold standard.

The most heterogeneous dish on record is the "ristafel" of the Dutch East Indies, which included from 30 to 50 different foods, all mixed together.

BEACH CLUB GIRL

MABEL McELLIOTT

CHAPTER XIV

OF course it was madness, Boots told herself as she slipped out of the half-wet bathing suit and nervously began to dress. Why, it was just a game they were playing. Girls and boys talked as she and Russ had all the time and it meant precisely nothing. Johnny had been shouting to Geraldine that very day on the raft, "Be mine, darling. Be mine! I can't live without you!" And everyone had simply screamed with laughter. It had been the most priceless comedy line.

Yes, she and Russ Lund were just playing at being in love. It didn't mean a thing. It was exciting, like being in a drama. The Amateur Group of the Juniors might give.

She heard her white sandals and ran a comb through her unruly curls. The memory of Russ's grave, unsmiling face as he had said, "Tomorrow," stayed with her. Non-sense. It was all nonsense and she was a fool ever to have let him say such things to her! Tonight mother would come home; every thing would go back into its proper place, like the pieces of a jigsaw puzzle. Russ would take the cattle boat or the fruit boat for Chile. She would have one letter from him—maybe two. This time next year she might not even remember his name.

"That's how serious it is," she said half aloud to convince herself. All through the evening, as she served jellied comp and broiled chops and salad to her father, as she washed dishes and brushed up the lichen floor with a worn broom the thought stayed with her. It was not serious—she would not let it be. Tomorrow she would employ in the right blend of gravity and humor in her farewell to the beach-club guard. He would see, he would understand that she was a woman of the world for all her 18 years. She flushed at the memory of her scarlet cheeks and stony eyes. "Why, he must think me a fool!" she told herself indignantly. "He probably says that to some girl every place he goes and expects me to know that."

In the flurry of her mother's arrival she almost forgot Russ. The dear, familiar thin face and spare, unimposing figure. The unimposing of the shabby legs—tanned the evening flow by.

"And how did the take care of you, daddy?"

MR. RABURN, bald head a good 10 years older than his wife, muttered that Barbara was fair enough but he was glad to have Mother home again.

"She's been on the go the five long time," he muttered, shaking out his paper and settling down under the unshaded lamp. "I never knew where she was after dinner."

INWARDLY Boots shivered. The thought of Aunt Nedda's cold, downy brownstone house near the Boston Common made her shiver. And where would Russ be by autumn? Making love to some beautiful Spanish beauty in an embroidered shawl? She could see herself, going to the library to change books for Aunt Nedda, going to symphony concerts, with pale, droll, dangerous people all about them.

No—no—never that! "I think I'll have a job by fall," she said vaguely.

"A job, daddy?" Her mother smiled indulgently. "What could you do?"

"Well, Mary Ollivant is helping out in a dress shop in New Martin and she loves it. And some of the other girls—Helen and Louise and Sue—are going to take a business course."

"But, my dear," began her mother in the tone, the strain Boots so dreaded, "after all they are newcomers here. They have no traditions to uphold. Why, your grandfather built the first Manor house, the one with the cupola, that the Westlys live in now. I couldn't have you in a shop, daddy, and I would never agree to that."

Boots sat down on the bed, her eyes glittering, her color high.

"But I've simply got to do something," she said feverishly. "I can't hang around here all my life, taking an allowance from Daddy knowing that every new pair of shoes I get is practically a family tragedy..."

"How you exaggerate!" placidly

SLEEP would not come. It was all wrong, the girl thought desperately, tossing in the darkness. Everything was wrong—her life here, the narrowness and stupidity of it, the restrictions that bound her. With Russ—and here her heart leaped—everything would be different. He belonged to a different world. He was not bound by the age-old taboos and conventions.

"I must be mad," she said for the hundredth time, switching on her bedside lamp to peer at the clock. It was 3 o'clock. It was 4. At daybreak she cautiously put on her clothes and slipped out the side door. The world was dewy, silvered in the pure early morning light. Everything was deliciously cool and fresh. Clear drops of crystal hovered on the nasturtium leaves, and every delphinium spoke was magnificently spanned with dew.

The girl, pale and heavy-eyed, strode across the grass to the gate, which led into the Harbors garden. It was only a short walk from here to the blue stretch of the sound. Her head ached. She wanted to be alone—to shake off the dark thoughts of the night.

"I ought to do this more often," she told herself, striding down the empty path to the water.

But the mood of exaltation quickly passed. She was, after all, little more than a child, with a woman's problems laid before her. Suddenly she put her shining hair head down into her hands and wept. "I don't know what to do," she sobbed. "If someone would only tell me what to do!"

It seemed to her that every place she looked she met an impasse. She had staved off thinking of the inevitable scene which would ensue when her mother learned of the bitter snub administered by Mrs. Parnell's heavy hand. She had tried to hope that, with work to do in the world, the narrowness of her social life would not matter. But that gate was now closed. Mrs. Raburn seemed unalterably opposed to any effort in that direction. And there was always the restriction of money.

"We've never had enough, really," Boots thought angrily, almost scornfully. And it was no use saying money didn't matter. It mattered frightfully.

"I'm so sorry. Can I be of any help?"

The cultivated voice started her. Looking up, touching her reddened eyes with a handkerchief, she stared straight at the tall dark young man she had met at Mrs. Hart's house. Denis Farway.

The Arrow and the Song
I shot an arrow into the air,
It fell to earth I knew not where;
For so swiftly it flew the sight,
Could not follow it in its flight.
I breathed a song into the air,
It fell to earth I knew not where;
For who has sight so keen and strong,
That it can follow the flight of a song?
Long, long afterwards in an oak
I found the arrow still unbroke,
And the song, from beginning to end,
I found again in the heart of a friend

HOLC to Quit If Banks Will Lend

Wooten Says U. S. Wants to Turn It Loose Speedily

LITTLE ROCK—If private lending institutions rally to the federal housing program within the next 90 days active lending of the Home Owners Loan Corporation will be ended, B. H. Wooten, president of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Little Rock declared in an address at a meeting of the Rotary club Thursday.

With the inauguration of the Federal Housing Administration, the government has indicated that it wishes to curtail its business activities and help private lending institutions, he said. In addition, he added, the government has shown that it desires to basis by placing James A. Moffatt at the head of it.

He pointed out that 3.72 per cent is the maximum interest which a lending institution may charge under the housing program if it has the loans insured. Lenders should prefer god will to high interest, he added.

J. J. Harrison, state director of the Federal Housing Administration, was termed "a good soldier" by Mr. Wooten, and he praised Mr. Harrison for his work both for the housing program and the National Housing Administration as director of the National Emergency Council for Arkansas.

Mr. Wooten said the Home Loan Bank was the first agency created and that it loaned $10,000,000 to its members. He reported that $5,000,000 of this amount had been repaid. He said that no relief agency had given more relief than the HOLC. Many persons have gotten "into the bread line" to obtain money at a low interest rate who are not entitled to HOLC loans he explained, and criticism from them is not surprising when their applications are rejected.

He also spoke on the organization of federal savings and loan associations, which he said is a clear indication the government recognizes that home financing should be through the savings of the people.

Soybeans Rated a Valuable Food

Are Grown in Wide Variety of Climates, Speaker Declares

STUTTGART, Ark.—"Soybeans can rightly be considered the most concentrated food known to man," Dr. E. LeClerc Sr., chemist of the Bureau of Soils and Industry, Department of Agriculture, told delegates to the American Soybean Association Thursday at the second day session of the national convention.

Dr. LeClerc said that soybeans are "one of the most important crops available and that the bean can be grown successfully under a variety of climates."

He explained the ways in which the beans may be used, and traced the history of the crop, which he said provides the chief source of protein food for the Chinese, Japanese, Koreans and other peoples.

The entire soybean crop can be utilized profitably, he said, the roots supplying nitrogen for the soil, the hay providing feed for livestock and the bean ground and crushed to give oil and cake to be used as stock feed or ground into flour.

Listed among the foods in which the beans are used were bread, cake, pie crust, cookies, macaroni, pretzels, ice cream, candy, pudding, salad dressing and shortening for cooking purposes.

He said that soybean flour is mixed with regular wheat flour to obtain breads and pastries of unusually good taste. He explained that refining removes the undesirable ingredients which formerly kept the bean from being used extensively.

Dr. LeClerc said that soybeans were strong in vitamins A and D and good at vitamins B and G and that eggs are the only foods richer in proteins.

There were more than 800,000 acres of soybeans in the United States in 1932, and that there are more than 2,500 varieties under observation at the present, he explained.

Russia Protests Jap Rail Arrests

Moscow Resents Charge That It Fomented Railway Attack

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet government has protested directly to the Japanese government arrest of Soviet citizens along the Chinese Eastern railway in Manchukuo, it was learned Thursday night.

The Soviet protest, which followed an earlier communication addressed to the Manchukuo government was delivered by Ambassador Yureneff to the Tokio government, it was learned.

Moscow's communication took particular exception to a communique issued by the Japanese War Ministry August 17 which, it charged, contained an "unprecedented statement" that the Soviet Far Eastern army issued orders for fomentation of attacks on Chinese Eastern railway property.

"For the above mentioned actions the Soviet government has charged me (Yureneff) with lodging its protest with you," the protest read.

"The government of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics expects that the Japanese government will make all necessary inferences."

SCHOOLS NEED

Arkansas' applications for federal aid will be based on the report of the districts, but Mr. Floyd explained that the full amount needed may not be obtained.

The 459 districts which have reported include 132,792 pupils and 4,046 teachers. These districts require 70,723 school days for a normal term, but estimated revenues will pay for only 23,017 days. Federal aid will be needed for 47,706 days.

These districts estimate an income of $2,557,187, but general expenses not including salaries, debt service and transportation, will be $2,076,781. This will leave only $679,551 for salaries, debt service and transportation.

man-Park hotel, in full view of a party of touring Germans, ball players, bell hops and assorted guests, he pulled up a pants leg, dramatically exposed a bruised left ankle, which was the color of an overripe banana.

"See that?" he shouted, snatching the reporter's elbow, "I can't bear down on it. I'm hurt all right but nobody is going to give you an alibi. I'll pitch my regular turn Saturday against Washington and I'll pop that record too."

Shanghaied out of the Eldorado (Ark.) firehouse only three years ago and already standing on the threshold of baseball's Hall of Fame, the young man is paradoxically quiescent and nervous. He needs only one game to tie the American League pitching record of 16 consecutive victories. This mark was first set by Walter Johnson in 1912, tied by Joe Wood the same summer and equaled in 1931 by Moses Grove.

"Maybe I haven't got any business along side of them fellows," confided Rowe, shielding his shin bone from the frankly bewildered gaze of the German tourist party. "But I have 15 in that satchel and I dream about that number 16. I have a hunch I am going to win it Saturday, but I can hardly sleep, thinking about it."

19-Ounce Baby's Bracelet Is Ring

The 19-ounce son of Mr. and Mrs. Biaggio San Filippo of Hammononton, N. J., is so tiny that Nurse Hildegard Conner's ring serves as a bracelet. Miss Conner, an incubator baby 27 years ago, is caring for the infant, who was born three months prematurely. She expects he, too, will live.

Eyes of the World Focus on "Babes in the Woods"

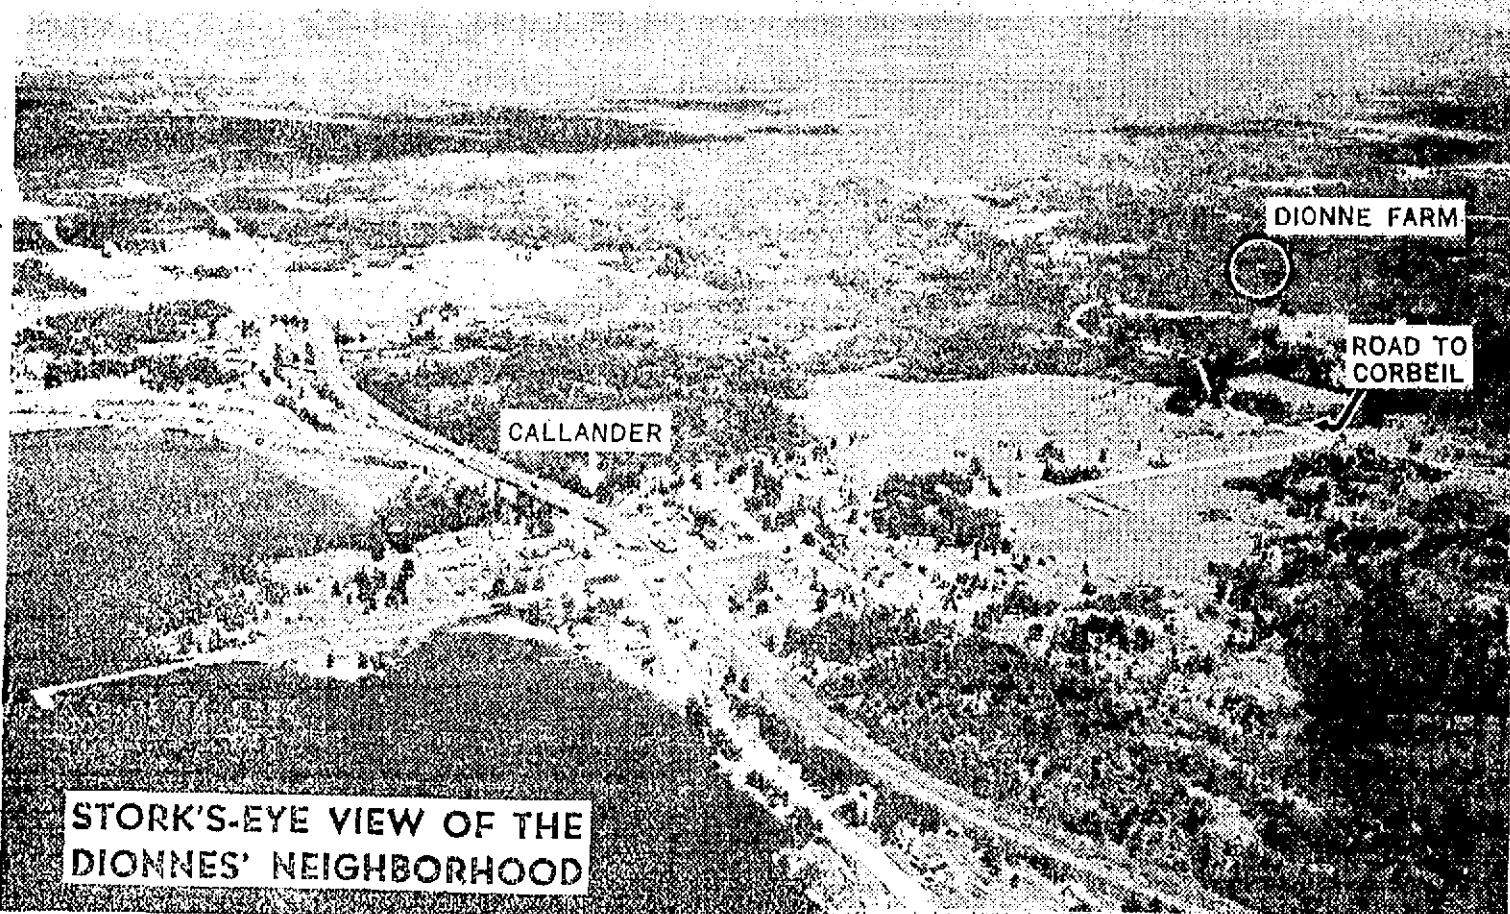

THEY HAVE THE NO. 1 NURSING JOB

THE MILK-TRAINS STOP AT CALLANDER

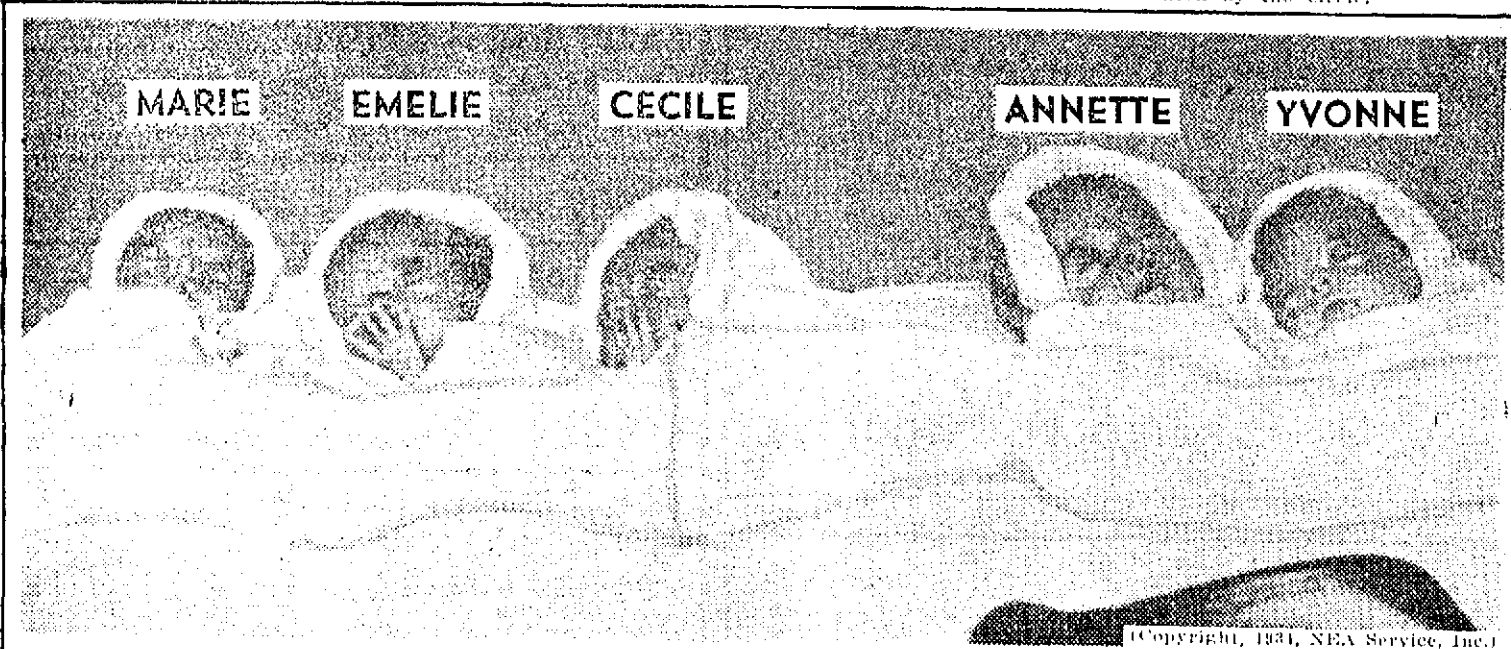

Here's where the mothers' milk shipped in for the Dionne babies arrives at Callander, the station is an old railway coach equipped with a semaphore and telegraph office. It is 2 1/2 miles from here, along the road to Corbeil, to the Dionne farm.

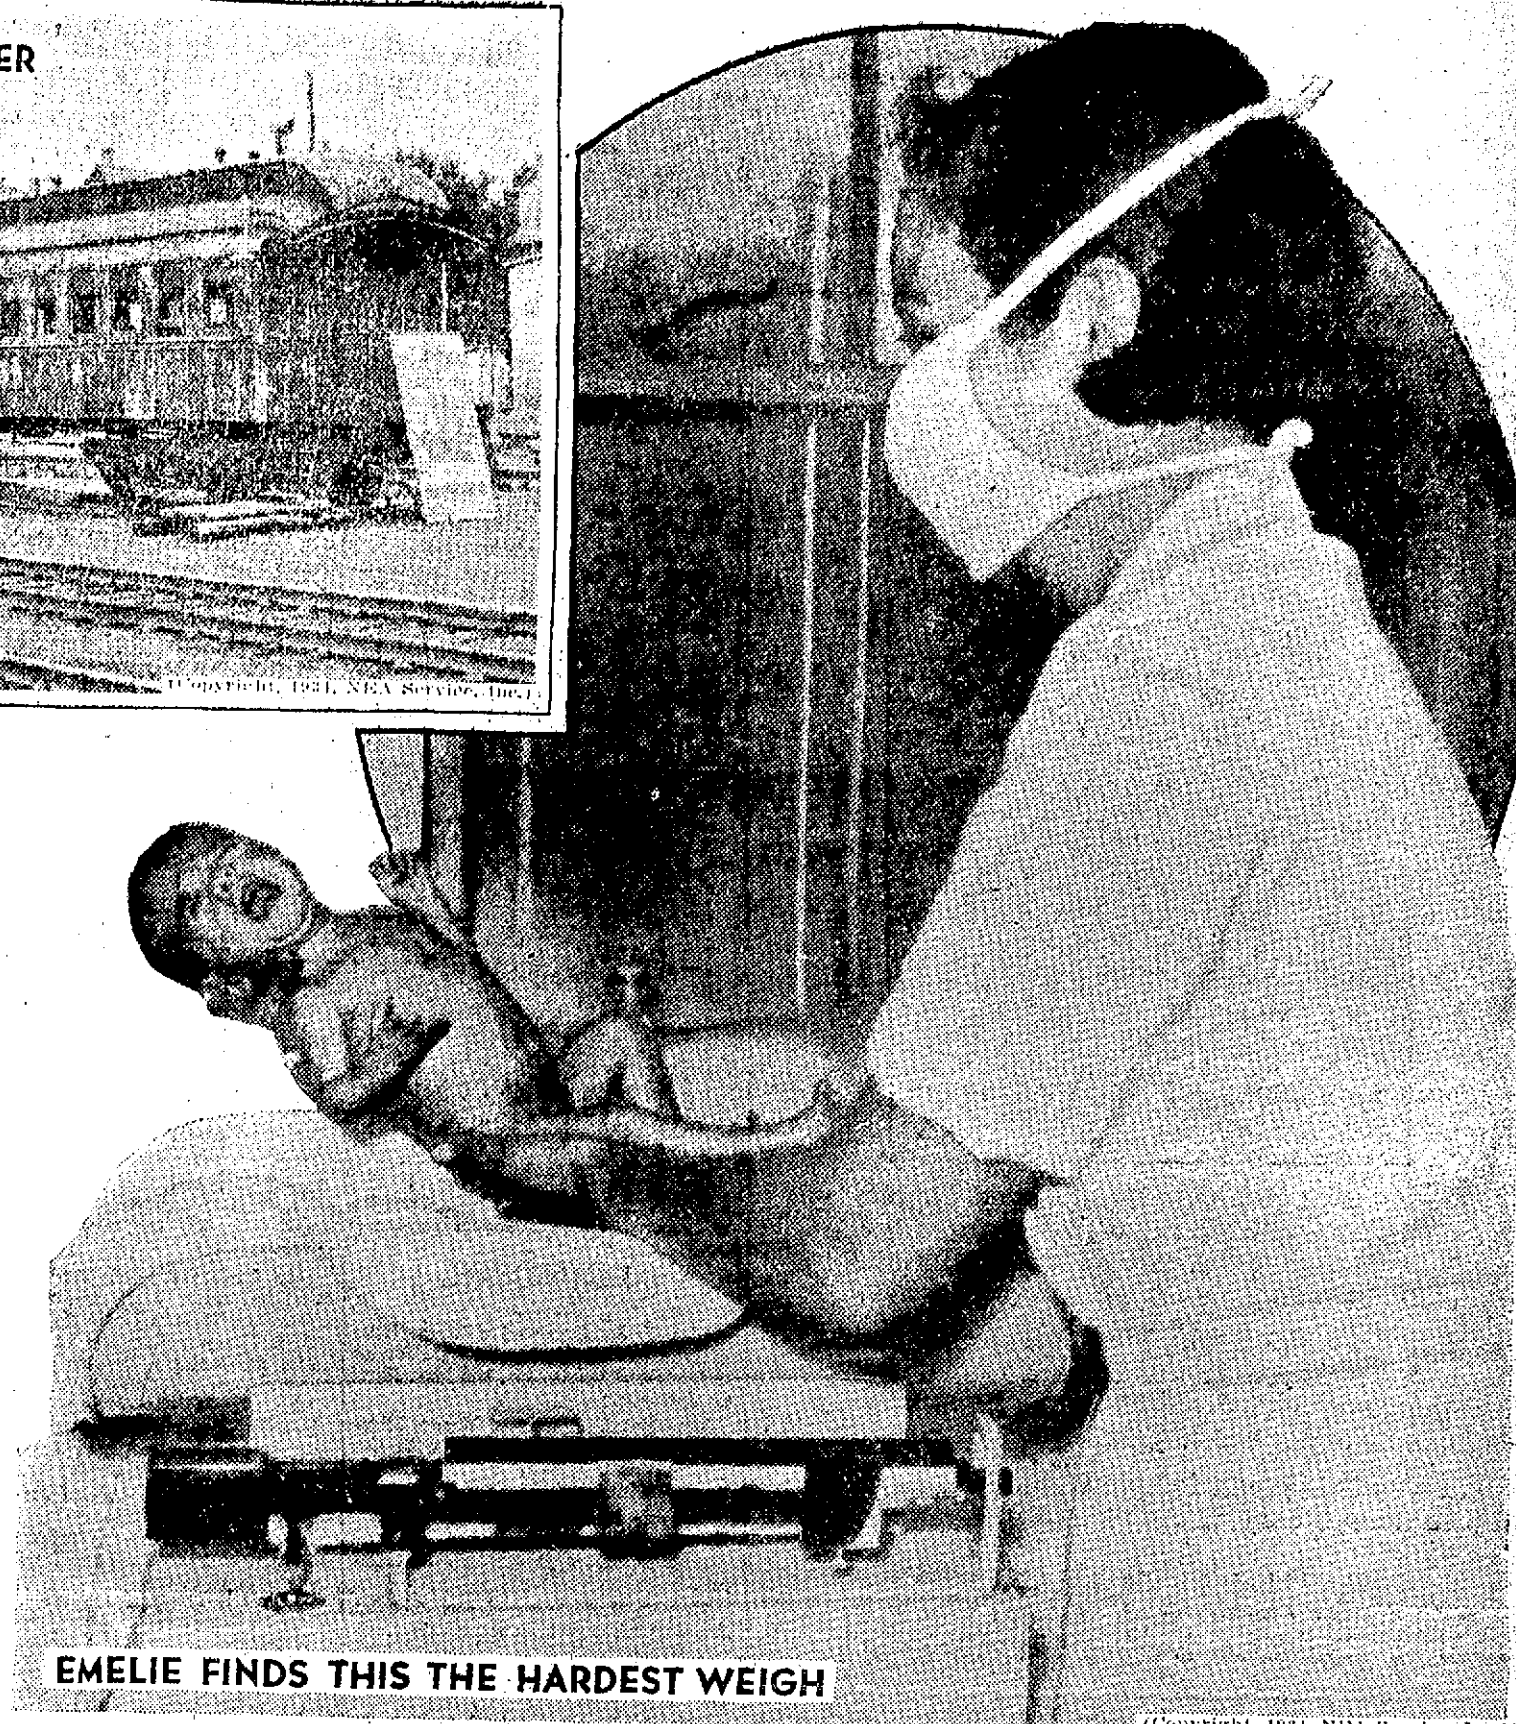

STORK'S-EYE VIEW OF THE DIONNES' NEIGHBORHOOD

Here's a stork's-eye view of the "bush" district on the edge of Lake Simcoe in northern Ontario. The town at the center is Callander, where the railroad brings milk to the Dionne babies. Dr. Dufoe lives here. When he drives out to the Dionne farm he takes the road leading diagonally off to the right, turning left into the woods at the end of the cleared space. The road winds on into the scrubby pine timber to the Dionne farm, location of which is indicated by the circle.

EMELIE FINDS THIS THE HARDEST WEIGH

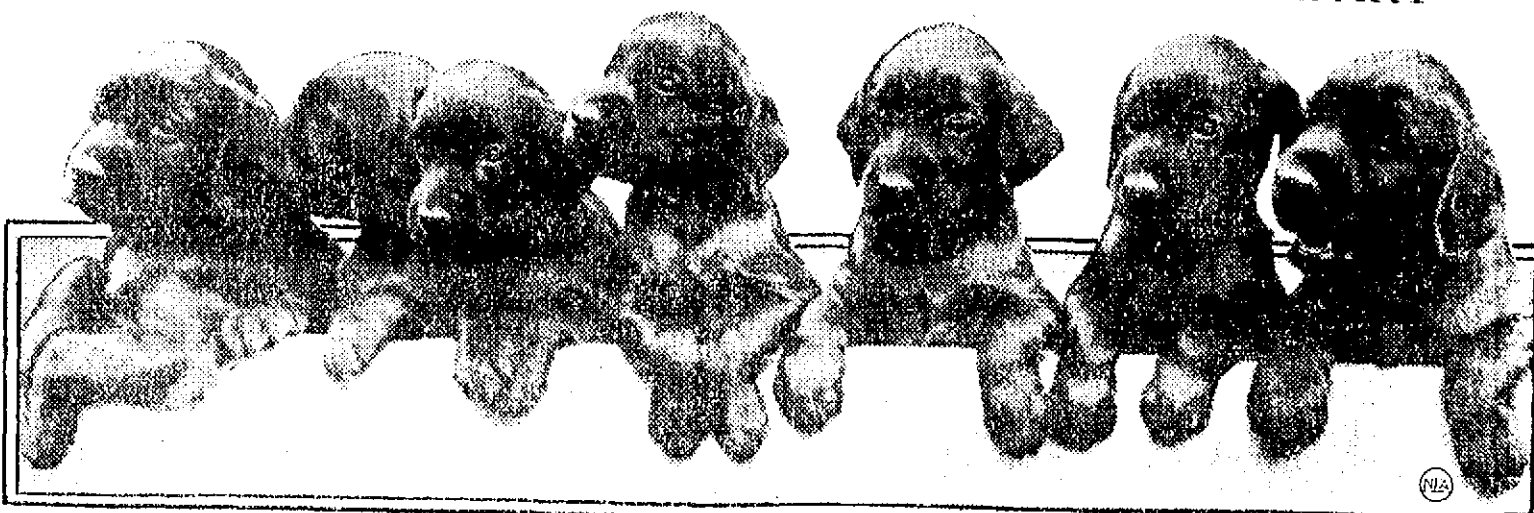

Just because she's a quintuplet, and weighs less than four pounds at two months, is no reason to Emelie Dionne why she should not express herself. And she expresses herself with emphasis when Nurse Yvonne Leroux takes her up for the daily weighing. It's largely through these differences in temperament that the nurses are able to tell the five baby girls apart, as they all look about alike. Emelie's lusty lungs and positive temperament identify her.

THE ROCKY ROAD TO CORBEIL; IT'LL BE SMOOTHER NOW

Least the quintuplets be isolated from the twice-daily visits of Dr. Dufoe and their milk supplies, the Ontario government put a crew to work on the rocky side road that leads to Callander. With the coming of snow and winter weather the road might well have become impassable and the quintuplets' lives endangered. The crew building the all-weather road is shown above.

EVEN MOTHER CAN'T TELL THESE SEPTUPLETS APART

If the Dionne quintuplets reach an age when they will want to have their own pets, it would be appropriate to draw the animals from a group like this. The seven Irish Setter puppies belonging to Frank Willis of Kirklyn, Pa., are so much alike that even quintuplets could not start an argument over their relative superiority.

Child Is Killed

Because a drunken reveler wantonly fired a shot from an auto speeding down a Chicago street, Bobby Pitts, Jr., above, 2-year-old son of a poor Chicago family, is dead and police are conducting a far-flung search for the killer.

Firestone Beauty on World's Fair Tour

Kay Griffith of the Firestone Factory and Exhibition Building at "A Century of Progress" is one of the three beauty queens now on a 10,000 mile tour conducted by the World's Fair. Three girls from the Firestone exhibition were chosen among the ten most beautiful at "A Century of Progress." The scene above shows a part of the greatly enlarged Firestone building of 1934 with typical crowds in the foreground and around the Firestone Singing Color Fountain.

Amateur Box Champions Again Grab Spotlight from Professionals

CLEVELAND—There has been a distinct switch from the professionals to the amateurs in boxing during the past several years.

Success of Golden Gloves tournaments throughout the country has had a great deal to do with this.

It used to be that when a newspaper or a social organization required money for a charity or for a cause it turned to professional boxing as a medium. But the New York Milk Fund is the lone organization doing this with any success now, and that is because the pugilists need the help of the newspapers in back of the fund.

Exorbitant demands of managers finally forced the Manhattan institution to insist upon 10 per cent off the top. Financial statements of a number of benefit balls revealed rich purses for the principals, and nothing at all for the poor kiddies. Several similar performances wound up in the red.

The Cleveland Press Child Vacation Fund committee is the latest to prove that benefits and charities can get along without the professional.

The Press committee could not arrange a professional match for Cleveland that would draw expenses, let alone net some money for its fresh air activities.

Amateurs Respond
So Stuart Bell, the Press sports editor, struck upon a novel idea. He'd match the national amateur champions with the best boys of his own district.

And this the Press is doing in the magnificent Municipal Stadium here on August 14, at prices ranging from 30 cents to $1.50.

Imagine a matchmaker making such a request of eight professional titleholders. One or two would ask for a mortgage on the Cleveland Terminal.

Weeks would be spent haggling about everything from training schedules to the judges and referee.

The difference in the spirit of professionals and amateurs again strikingly was illustrated when six simple-pure rulers responded to the call of the Press. One had turned professional and work prevented the other from getting into condition.

Fred Apostoli, middleweight and Norbert Meehan, lightweight, readily consented to fly from San Francisco for the show. To obtain a worthwhile opponent for Apostoli the Press went to Fort Monroe, Va., and there landed Claude Bingaman, the Virginia State Champion.

Amateurs fight for fun, so why not a bit more of it, so that more underprivileged children can be sent to the health camps.

Chumps in Match Bouts
The result is that the Press is offering one of the finest amateur programs ever presented—the first in which the national champions appear in match bouts.

Stanley Evans, national heavyweight champion is coming from Highland Park, Mich., to tackle Steve Smoey. Danny Farrer, national welter ruler will run in from Youngstown to block and sock with Frankie Bojack.

Meehan is to engage Chuck Clemenco. Springfield Ill., is sending Armando Sicilia, bantam, and Tommy Barrk, fly, to fence with Troy Bellini and Jesse Levels respectively.

The production will be given an international flavor by the presence of Sammy Lufspring, of Toronto, the Ontario lightweight leader, who is to square off with Johnny Bonis.

Ray Sharkey, feather finalist in the national tourney, is to engage Add Net low of Detroit. One of the three additional heavyweight bouts will show Max Marek, the Chicago star and Notre Dame football player and Joe Bauer.

Meanwhile some of our professional champions sit back and wonder why a majority of those who used to compose the fistie trade cannot recall their names.

The belief that it increased the butter content of milk led to the naming of the buttercup; it grows only on sound, dry, old pastures which afford the best of food to cows.
